Livermore views Isabel project route, financing

The Alameda County Public Works Department has completed a preliminary feasibility study on the extension of Isabel Avenue from Stanley Boulevard to Interstate 580, spurred on by the possibility of federal funding to pay for the $3.8 million project.

The report, issued this month, explores the feasibility of constructing an extension of Isabel Avenue beginning 1500 feet south of Stanley Boulevard and continuing north to Kitty Hawk Road, tying into the frontage road along I-580 to the Airway Boulevard freeway interchange.

Ultimately, the project would provide for a grade separation structure at the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific railroad tracks and at Stanley Boulevard.

The roadway would be extended on fill to meet a point 1500 feet south of Stanley Boulevard.

In Phase One, two 12 - foot wide lanes and two 10 - foot shoulders would be constructed, serving in the future as part of the four - or six - lane expressway south of Las Positas Boulevard.

The intersection of Isabel Avenue would be relocated approximately 300 feet to the east of the present intersection.

Estimated cost for Phase One of the project is $1.7 million. Jessie Cambra, Chief of the Alameda County Road Department, said the total cost will be approximately $3.8 million.

The County is hopeful that a new federal public works bill, Senate Bill 3201, will pick up the tab for at least Phase One of the project.

As Cambra explained, the federal bill is essentially a "make work" effort. Its focus is to promote employment both in the construction industry and in other industries that would benefit from construction of the highways.

The bill requires that any projects receiving funds be started within 90 days of receipt of the money.

Cambra said the federal funds should be available in early fall. If the Isabel extension project is funded, work will have to begin by late November or early December, she estimated. So the county has stepped up its planning and design efforts on the project.

Cambra admitted that "there are many viable projects around" that could be funded. But she said the county was optimistic that if the application is made early, the project will get first consideration.

She admitted there could be a problem securing funding under this bill for the entire extension project, since it will not be possible immediately to begin work on the grade separation. But Cambra indicated that Phase One, at least, would qualify under the bill, provided project plans are completed soon.

Supervisor John Murphy has been pushing the Isabel Avenue extension as an alternative to the ill - fated El Charro Road connection. Murphy told The Times Friday that "funding is the biggest hurdle," but noted that there is a "good possibility that we can get some dough" under the federal public works bill.

Murphy said the Isabel Avenue extension is a "badly needed facility," one that would open up industry in the area.

Copies of the project feasibility study have been sent to the City of Livermore this week. Murphy hopes the two jurisdictions can concur on features of the project "within the immediate future."

The Livermore City Council will take up the matter Monday.

Livermore's Public Works Director, Dan Lee, said in a report to the council that he is concerned with the plan for the ultimate overhead over the railroad tracks and Stanley Boulevard. It would require Stanley Boulevard traffic to proceed more than a quarter of a mile south to get onto Isabel Avenue northbound.

Lee suggested that a "more desirable way to resolve this problem" would be to relocate the railroad tracks to the north, and construct an overhead to cross both the railroad tracks and the Arroyo Mocho.

It may be necessary, Lee noted, to consider additional improvements where Kittyhawk Road intersects Airway Boulevard just south of the Airway Boulevard overpass. Anticipated increased volume of traffic, Lee said, may be excessive for existing improvements.

Airport restaurant on agenda

LIVERMORE — If the Livermore City Council approves amendments to the airport restaurant lease Monday night, its new tenants, Red Baron Steak House, Inc., will open its doors to customers on or about Sept. 1.

The council has already approved in principle the lease transfer from Crosswinds Restaurant Corporation to the Red Baron, but negotiations on amendments to the lease have stalled reassignment.

The airport restaurant, The Tailwinds, has been closed since mid - April. The Crosswinds Corporation has held the restaurant lease since 1971, and during those years the restaurant has gone through a series of managers and been plagued by financial difficulties.

But the city hopes new provisions in the lease regarding insurance coverage, default, hours of operation, ownership of fixtures, trade name and management standards will change all that.

The Red Baron corporation has already indicated it wishes to change the restaurant's image — catering less to the late night drinking and dancing crowd and more to the family diners.

The new lessee has already made substantial renovations to the facility. When complete, the restaurant will feature new decor, carpeting and a remodeled kitchen.

The new operators hope to open their doors to the public on or about Sept. 1, five months after the Tailwinds closed.

During that period, the city has not been receiving its percentage of the restaurant's gross receipts. The lease requires the lessee to pay the city, owner of the restaurant facility, $850 per month and 6 per cent of the gross receipts. The $850 is credited toward the percentage.

The city council is expected to approve the lease amendments Monday night. Councilman Marshall Kamena has expressed some disatisfaction that the lease is being amended. Last week he noted that the council had approved a straight - forward transfer from the Crosswinds Corporation to the Red Baron firm.

Rather than make a series of amendments to the 1971 agreement, the city could have chosen to negotiate a new lease.

Kamena was assured by the city staff that the amendments were made to "clarify subsequent administration to the original lease."

Isabel-580 link draws new favor

County officials are hopeful that a federal public works bill will provide funding for an extension of Isabel Avenue beginning 1500 feet south of Stanley Boulevard to Kittyhawk Road leading to Interstate 580. A preliminary project report issued this month estimates the total project cost at $3.8 million.

Industrial sewerage

Brandes raps 'lax' city action

PLEASANTON — Questions of whether the city has been lax in enforcing sewer discharge standards for local industries have been raised by Councilman Frank Brandes.

Brandes told The Times last week that the city apparently has not issued any sewer discharge permits to local industries which discharge effluent higher in Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD), despite a requirement to do so by a 1966 city ordinance.

Although many local dischargers could be affected in such enforcement, for example, restaurants and food markets which discharge organic wastes into the sewer plant, Brandes singled out the Cheese Factory as the city's single prime BOD discharger.

The city staff, too, paid attention to the Cheese Factory, naming it as the subject of a special report done in October, 1975, by Kennedy Engineers, which also studied the general picture in an earlier report dated in June.

The chief recommendations of the Kennedy Engineers report on the Cheese Factory included the following:

- Computation of a pro - rated discharge fee of an estimated $10,477 annually, compared to the $570 annually now paid by the Cheese Factory.
- A proposed requirement for at least minimum on - site treatment of wastes at the Cheese Factory which would cost an estimated $8,000 annually.
- An estimate that if the Cheese Factory wanted to give high treatment to the BOD — eliminating 90 per cent of it — the firm would have to spend $50,000 annually.

The Kennedy report was done because the Environmental Protection Agency, which is granting funds for sewer plant expansion, requires that the city know how much BOD each industrial discharger is contributing. Each discharger must pay his or her fair share of treatment costs, according to EPA.

Frank Brandes

Brandes is concerned about several aspects of the situation. First, the city apparently never has enforced its own 10 year old ordinance requiring major BOD dischargers to get a discharge permit from the city.

Second, the report about the Cheese Factory "sat around" since October, 1975, when it was issued. Nothing apparently is being done about the Cheese Factory's BOD contributions.

Brandes said he tried to bring up the situation at a city council meeting a few weeks ago, but allegedly was cut off by Mayor Robert Philcox. Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire supposedly told him that the October, 1975, report was not brought up because the city "did not want to make it an election issue."

Brandes told The Times he does not "like this going on behind closed doors."

The various parties involved gave their responses to The Times Friday.

LeClaire said that "We felt we should wait until after the election. The complexion of the council could change greatly. We also wanted to do more preliminary work on figures before we went to the Cheese Factory," said LeClaire.

"There's no need to start a big controversy over it. It's something I personally prefer to leave in the hands of the city manager. It has to be worked out at that level. It's not a political matter, but a technical one.

"I don't think he (Brandes) should bring it to the paper. It's political grandstanding," said LeClaire.

City Manager Bill Edgar said his staff has been working with George Spiliotopoulos, Cheese Factory owner, "extensively" over the past six months. Spiliotopoulos has installed some equipment and Edgar understands that the data received now "is

SR homeowners' unit miffed when trustees ignore query

Homeowners seeking a special tax study session are reprimanding the San Ramon Valley Unified School District for its refusal to meet.

The San Ramon Homeowners Association fired off a letter to school board members after a request for a joint study session on school budgets and tax rates fell through.

Susanna Schlendorf, president of the association wrote to express "dismay at the refusal of the school board to set up a study session with members of the Taxpayers Together group.

"Even if we were to request a reconsideration of this issue by your board," Schlendorf wrote; "it would be too late to do any good; there would be insufficient time to meet before the required adoption date of the final budget."

Schlendorf's letter is listed as an informational item on the school district's agenda for its meeting Monday, 7:30 p.m., in the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Drive, Danville.

Whether it will be discussed during the meeting remains to be seen — or heard.

A spokesman for the school district stated the matter seemed to be a result of bad timing, that the budget had not at that time reached a stage of development that could be discussed.

"Our frustration is magnified by the knowledge that there seems to be no way to repair the damage that has been done," Schlendorf stated in her letter.

The spokesman said a letter explaining the district's position has been mailed to the SRHA. The letter was dated July 23.

As of Friday, Schlendorf had not received the letter. She had no word from other SRHA members who might have received it.

Adoption of the final $24.6 million budget will be one of the items on the Monday school board agenda.

Last year's budget was $23.3 million, 5.83 per cent smaller.

Tax rates for this coming year have gone from 6.311 cents to 5.986 cents per $100 assessed valuation. This is a 5.15 per cent decrease.

In other action Monday, recommendations will be made for a new Neil Armstrong Elementary School principal. The school district would not releast names of possible candidates.

Trustees eye Murray Dist. fiscal plan

DUBLIN — A contingent from Residents In Action (RIA), the newly formed group opposing conversion of Dublin Elementary into a middle school, are expected to add interest to an otherwise routine school board meeting Monday night.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in Murray School, Davona Drive.

Besides comments from RIA members, the meeting will include two public hearings, the first on the district's $8 million operating budget, the other on inter - district attendance agreements.

The resignations of three district employes are expected to be accepted; they are head bus driver William R. Burns, Nielsen School teacher Gary Biedma and health services coordinator Doreen Uphouse.

Also, trustees will grant a leave of absence to Wells chorus and physical education teacher Dorothy Bushakra, approve the principalship of Vince Anaclerio at Lydiksen School, give Lynne Frey another temporary contract and change Robert Ventimiglio's contract from temporary to probationary.

The board is expected to decide to renew their membership in two organizations — the Alameda County School Boards Association, at $30 per year dues, and the California School Boards Association at $1.160.25 dues.

Also up for approval is a listing of the district's hourly wage rates for manual labor, ranging from $7.55 an hour for truck laborers to $13.10 an hour for plumbers in a 36 - hour week.

Alert San Ramon resident spots prime Chowchilla kidnap suspect

PALO ALTO — Lee R. Wallis of San Ramon couldn't believe his eyes when he saw the van of James Schoenfeld, wanted in connection with the Chowchilla kidnapping, ahead of him on the freeway Thursday morning.

"I don't see how they (the police) could have kept from finding him the way he was driving and holding up traffic," Wallis said after police captured Schoenfeld on his tip.

Wallis, 48, was en route to a gardening job in Mountain View at 6:45 a.m. when he spotted Schoenfeld driving a faded green van with Idaho license plates on the freeway by Alviso and Mt. View roads near Milpitas.

He remembered radio and television reports of the vehicle police suspected Schoenfeld was driving.

"I rolled up behind him. I looked at him and was surprised, there he was," Wallis said.

Schoenfeld pulled his cap down over his eyes and Wallis played a game of cat and mouse with him as they drove along the freeway at 30 miles per hour, accelerating to only about 40 miles per hour, he said.

Wallis pulled onto the freeway shoulder three times, hoping to flag down motorists who could notify police that he was tailing a suspect in the kidnapping 26 Chowchilla school students and their driver.

Finally, near the Stierlin Road exit, he flagged down Mountain View police officer Steve Mello who alerted other patrol units.

Schoenfeld was stoped on the Bayshore Freeway by a Palo Alto policeman.

Schoenfeld was en route to his parents' house when he was spotted by Wallis, said the suspect's attorney, William Gagen, of Danville.

Komandorski rent hike

Pleasanton Housing Authority Commissioners approved a 17 per cent rent increase last week for Komandorski Village effective September 1. The vote was unanimous. Commissioners regretted having to take the action, but felt they had no choice in the face of rising utility increases. More than half the costs of running the housing authority are utilties, according to Executive Director Michael Parsons. The rent increases were as follows: one bedroom, from $93 to $108; two bedroom, $104 to $121; three bedroom, from $114 to $133; four bedroom, from $135 to $157; four bedroom with two hot water heaters, $150 to $172; and five bedrooms, $159 to $185.

The Cheese Factory was just part of the overall problem of the improvements needed on the old Sunol Boulevard Sewage Treatment Plant, said Edgar. The city also looked at the county fairgrounds and Villa Armando and they seemed to be reasonably clean, he said.

Edgar noted that Mayor Robert Philcox and Counicilman Ken Mercer met with Spiliotopoulos to impress the situation on him.

Mercer acknowledged a meeting with Spiliotopoulos, though he has not informed others of it. He said the cheese manufacturer is trucking away the whey, the strongest element in the cheese wastes.

"Basically George has conformed," said Mercer. "He is waiting until the evening hours to discharge his effluent, so there is less impact on the sewer plant. George has hired engineers, he realizes his responsibility on this. He showed us a purchase order; he bought equipment from an eastern cheese factory, tanks, filtration system. The prime problem is the whey. He solved that problem two weeks after Philcox and I talked to him."

It was news to former Mayor Robert Pearson that the whey problem has just been solved. "When I was on the council, we were told the whey was being trucked away," said Pearson.

"We were always told by the staff there was no problem. I had no reason to assume there was a problem, until I saw the data recently (The Kennedy Report) on the Cheese Factory. The staff said it was being trucked away, but the Kennedy study shows it wasn't."

"Why wasn't the problem solved 10 years ago? It wouldn't matter except that we spent thousands of dollars fixing the Sunol Plant when this was going on," said Pearson.

Spiliotopoulos said he has been trucking the whey. He was "amazed" that Brandes went to The Times about his factory without talking to him first.

Spiliotopoulos acknowledged meeting with the staff and with Mercer and Philcox, but he never received a copy of the Kennedy Engineers report on his factory. Asked if The Times could provide him with a copy, Spiliotopoulos replied, "I would hope that in the proper course of dealing with a manufacturer who has been in the city since 1920, they would send me a copy."

Regarding the possibility of a sewer service charge which could run as high as $10,000 a year for the Cheese Factory, Spiliotopoulos said it should carry the principle of equity. Every garbage disposal in a home makes a contribution to the BOD levels in the city sewer plant, so a fee should be charged on a pro - rated basis to homes, too, he said.

Restaurants, markets and other heavy users should be charged a fee consistent with one he would pay, or it would be unconstitutional, he said.

Campbell's answers to a Times reporter's questions about the level of pre - treatment which will be required of the Cheese Factory were general. He said that achieving the 90 per cent BOD treatment level mentioned in the Kennedy report was "unrealistic" from the city's point of view and too costly from the Cheese Factory's point of view.

There are many other factors involved, especially the timing of discharges into the city's plant, said Campbell. "I think we can work it out where there is a minimum amount of treatment so that we can get an equitable service charge. The $10,000 annual fee mentioned in the Kennedy report is based on the way the Cheese Factory pre - treated wastes at the time. If he does the improvements, it can be lower.

"We're aiming for minimal pre - treatment. The study by Kennedy was exploratory, based on what happened at the time," said Campbell.

Spiliotopoulos hopes the costs are kept reasonable from his point of view, or he will close down the Cheese Factory, he told The Times. He has plans for the improvements and if the city doesn't find them acceptable, "the city can look for another cheese factory."

"But it's something I'm sure we will be able to work out. We have never asked nor expected any favorable treatment nor have we received any," said Spiliotopoulos.

Cocaine, PCP and pot confiscated at park

PLEASANTON — Two persons illegally parked in John DeLucchi Park Wednesday were found to possess cocaine, PCP and marijuana, polic reported.

Officer Chris Dickinson spotted the vehicle about 10 p.m. It is illegal both to be in the park at night and drive onto park property, police said.

Dickinson approached the occupants and spotted cigarette rolling papers and a styrofoam container in full view. He asked what was in the container, and after a brief conference between the two men, was told "Tobacco." The driver opened the container and showed it contained a quantity of marijuana, police said.

The two men exited the vehicle at Dickinson's request and a further search was conducted, which uncovered a plastic tumbler containing two lids of marijuana. Two small vials were also found: one contained ¾ gram of cocaine valued at $75, the other a small quantity of PCP, an animal tranquilizer commonly sprinkled on parsley and smoked.

A vial containing a small amount of marijuana was also found in the driver's pocket, police said.

Robert Clyde Peterson Jr. of Castro Valley was booked on suspicion of possessing a small quantity of marijuana, and on failure to pay outstanding traffic tickets.

Samuel Roberts, 25, of 3810 Vineyard Ave. in Pleasanton, was booked on suspicion of possession of more than one ounce of marijuana, two counts of possession of controlled substances, and failure to pay outstanding traffic tickets.

Pleasanton schools ponder salary hikes

PLEASANTON — Following in the footsteps of the Amador High School district, the Pleasanton Elementary School District will be reshuffling its budget and coming up with enough money to give employes a small raise this year.

Trustees agreed to some $125,729 in priority budget cuts, including a reduction of five and a half (full - time equivalents) teachers, a reflection of the district's continuing decline in enrollment. The district has gone from 5,460 students in 1974-75 to 5,415 last year. Expected enrollment this year is 5,309.

Dropping staff will save the district some $73,000.

Also cut were custodial and maintenance uniforms, a savings of $9,700; home to school transportation, a $30,000 item; towel service, which would have cost $6,000; and several other items.

Although raises have not yet been settled, the extra $175,000 that has been gleaned from various sources could pay for a 3 per cent raise for employes.

The elementary school district's $7.1 million budget includes $3.3 million in local money, $3.3 million in state income and $145,630 in federal funding.

Salaries will swallow up some $6 million of the budget in the coming year.

He 'reads' people by their book selections

By LILLY AULT

Women between the ages of 20 to 30 are the biggest buyers of books according to Gerald Beyer, owner-operator of the "Penny Lane" booke store in the Val Vista Shopping Center on Hopyard Road. "Their first choice of reading runs in the romances and gothics selections," he stated.

Men, according to Beyers are "active commuters" spending their time driving to and from work. "This is a bedroom community," he says "but in areas where men can take public transportation, they are more apt to buy books to read while commuting."

He sums up the children in the area as "verbal" and "articulate in many ways," but yet they can't read. They're "mouthing" instead of attempting to read. "For every 50 kids who come into the store," he said, "one will pick up a book and be able to read it. Beyers attributes this to so much T.V. watching by the kids. "However," he went on to add, "the kids are quite well behaved."

The six-foot-five, bearded owner contends he will be "selective" on the type of books he will carry in his shop, but states, "It's impossible to read everything I pick up for stocking the shelves. Just about all the latest literature is exploiting sex."

Beyer encourages people to trade their used books for other used books they may not have read and can't afford to buy. Seventy per cent of my supply of copy comes through the door," he said.

Before opening his door for business, Beyer attended many local garage sales to acquire his inventory for the shop. "Because of the approximately 23 per cent turn over of families in the area," Beyer stated, "books are readily available. Usually people will not bother to take these items with them unless they are classics or collections. They find out the weight of the books adds up, costing the mover money to pack them along."

Although the books carried in the brightly decorated and clean atmosphere location, can be labeled "used" many of them have the look of being new. This is because Beyer is "choosy" on the supply of literature he selects for the store.

"I look over my selections very carefully, as I don't want books that are badly damaged nor do I want two or three copies of every selection I have in the store unless I know it is a popular item that will be in demand," he said.

Beyer claims he knows just about all the editions he carries in the store, but "if someone asked me to name 50 of them, I wouldn't be able to do it. That is not the way you learn to retain what you have available," he explained. "There is a method to it and if someone would come into the store or call and ask if I have a certain publication I'd be able to answer immediately.

"The secret is in relating," he stated without going into detail.

Being a part of the community Beyer feels helps to "get the pulse of the people's needs and desires. You get the idea of what they don't want to see in stock and what their line of thinking is to help supply the type of book you feel they would like."

The Pleasanton resident whose wife, Karen, works in Dublin, has been in the book business for many years managing new as well as used bookstores. His knowledge in the business is well displayed in his store.

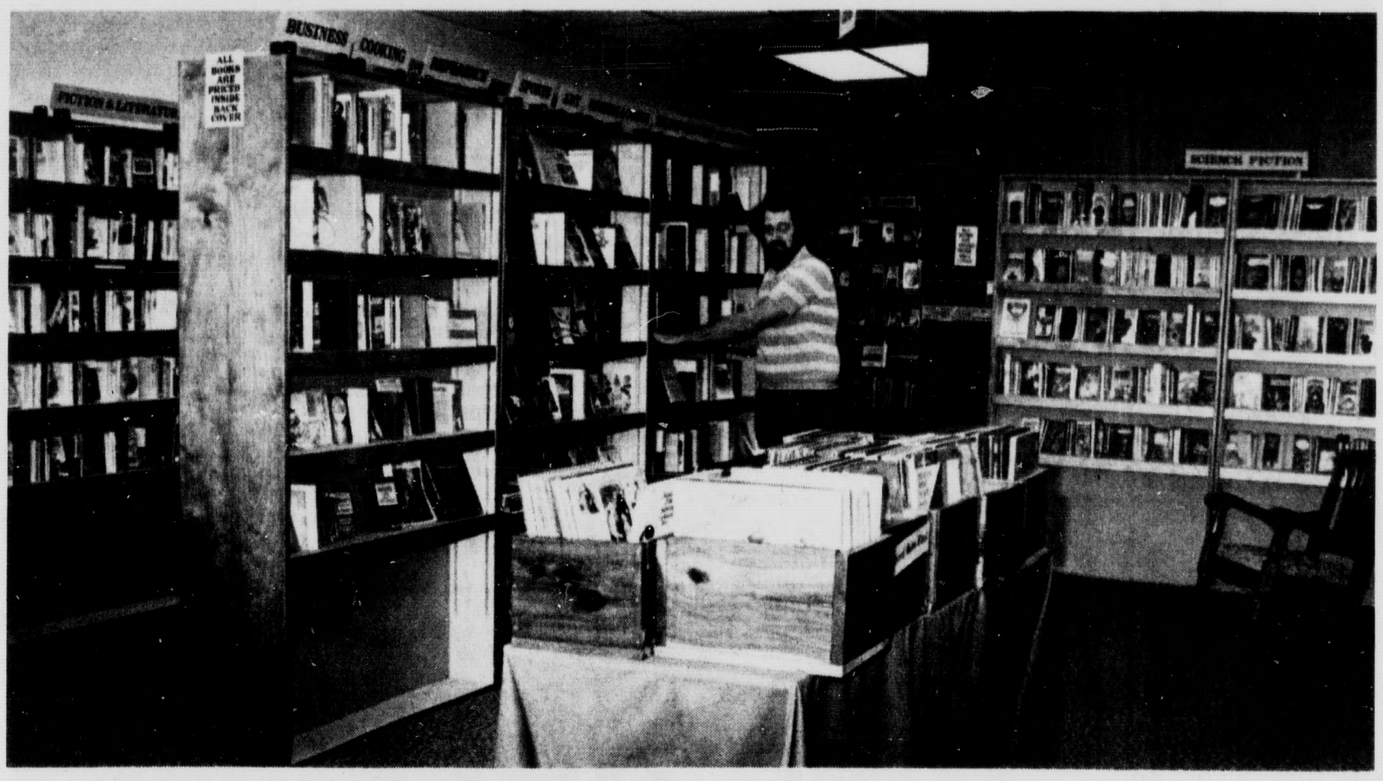
In spite of the misfortune of a fire occurring in the building even before he went into operation and destroying some of his shelves and counters for display, he still came up with attractive substitutes. "Most people think of used book stores as being dirty, dingy places," said Beyer, "but I wanted mine to be something with class. Some people when they first come in, take a while to realize it is a used book store."

It is Beyer's opinion that this type of store will become more and more popular as the price of reading material, like everything else, continues to go up. "Sooner or later customer's reach a point of resistance," he said.

Beyer will also be carrying used records and tapes at a reasonable price. He encourages kids interested in "swapping" their records to stop by and see him. So far he has only a small supply of tapes as, "tapes are quite popular now."

Some of his categorized selections which can be browsed through Monday through Friday from noon to 9 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays, are Kid Books; Self - Improvement; Social Sciences; Nature; Poetry; Performing Arts; History; Business; Reference; Sports; Hobbies and Crafts and many, many more.

Further questions regarding any books or records may be directed to Beyer by calling 462-2422.



Running a bookstore is more than just reading books to Gerald Beyer of Pleasanton who spends hours, stocking, catagorizing and pricing his stock of merchandize.

Pleasanton Miss is top-rated

A standing ovation from the audience at the Miss California Teenager Pageant in Newport Beach was earned by Barbara Fletcher of Pleasanton with a speech on herself, her state and her country delivered without notes.

For her poise and personality, appearance and scholastic achievement, Barbara was named second runner-up in the state-wide contest.

Final judging was completed in four days of screening by a panel of judges. Each of the 25 finalists was required to speak onstage, with a selected 15 required to give extemporaneous answers to questions.

Barbara was among five winners to receive a bouquet of roses and a trophy from Hollywood celebrities. She is a 16-year-old senior at Foothill High School. This summer she is working as a lifeguard and doing some part-time modeling.

Miss Fletcher plans to attend the University of California at Berkeley and major in counseling or special education.

Blood bank to be initiated Aug. 7

A community blood bank at the John Knox United Presbyterian Church in Dublin will be initiated Saturday, Aug. 7. All volunteers age 18 and up are asked to donate blood between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The bank is sponsored by the Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Association which reports a critical shortage of blood which is delaying many surgeries.

The John Knox Church Donor Club is concerned not only with the continuing demand for blood supplies, especially as Labor Day approaches, but also with the high cost of blood. Recipients of blood must pay $50 a pint if not a member of a blood bank club.

In cooperation with the medical association, the John Knox Donor Club intends the blood bank to serve residents of Dublin, San Ramon, Pleasanton and Livermore. All blood given Aug. 7 will be available free of charge to any valley resident with an urgent need in coming months.

Volunteers may make an appointment for Aug. 7, if convenient, by calling 828-1846.

Bicentennial leader cited by Exchangites

The Amador - Livermore Valley Exchange Club yesterday bestowed its highest award, the Book of Golden Deeds, upon Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee Chairman Brad Hirst.

The club lauded Hirst's efforts in coordinating the community's bicentennial activities.

Hirst received a certificate and a token of the club's appreciation.

The Exchange Club plans to similarly honor Gib and Marjory Marguth, co-chairpersons of the Livermore Bicentennial Organization, and Bob Elliott, chairman of the Dublin Bicentennial Committee at later dates.

The club has bestowed the honor only once before. Earlier this spring Janet Newton, chairwoman of the Livermore Heritage Guild, received the Book of Golden Deeds award.

The honor recognizes significant and outstanding contributions to the community.

Valley students win honors

Timothy A. Piper of Pleasanton has received a $100 award for acheiving a 3.5 grade point average (of a possible 4.0) in his freshman year at the University of the Pacific, it was recently announced.

Piper was named a recipient of the President's Honors at Entrance Awards after maintaining the high grades during his first term there. He is a former student of Amador High School.

Three Livermore students were named to the Dean's List at UC Santa Barbara for the Spring quarter.

Pamela King Barr, Michael James Council and Joan Margaret Foote were included on the Spring list, naming students of high academic standing.

Five Pleasanton residents were named to the Spring quarter Dean's Honor List at the College of Alameda recently, maintaining a 3.35 grade point average.

The honor students are Ben Begier, Joseph Kaminski, Elva Ruiz, Richard Slattery and Dale Thompson. Perfect 4.0 averages were maintained by Begier, Kaminski and Thomnson.

Public reaction to earthquakes

Afraid of earthquakes?

The Association of Bay Area Governments wants to know what kind of programs would make you feel safer in facing the inevitable tremors that afflict this part of the country.

Citizens who have ideas about earthquake preparedness programs should call ABAG's public affairs department (841 - 9730) for a free booklet called "Ideas for Action."

The booklet summarizes recommendations on earthquake preparedness from ABAG's general assembly in February. It also outlines what ABAG is doing as a result of the conference.

Included with the booklet is a card asking about participation in a series of small workshops on specific earthquake preparedness subjects that ABAG might conduct in the future.

Contra Costa enveils new program for drunk drivers

By JOHN VANLANDINGHAM
Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — An alternative to prosecuting many of the county's nearly 6,000 drunk driving cases every year has been unveiled by county officials.

Actually, the program is being expanded to a county-wide basis after having been conducted experimentally in the East County since April 1975.

Under the program, previously convicted drunk driving defendants who need their driver's licenses for work will be referred to an alcohol therapy program.

If accepted, the defendant is enrolled in a program of intensive therapy and supervision for one year. Successful completion lets the defendant plead guilty to reckless driving and be fined up to $315.

Failure means facing trial and conviction with the risk of losing his license.

The program was explained Friday by its developers-the District Attorney's Office, the Probation Department, and the Alcohol Information and Referral Service, (AIRS) in cooperation with the county's municipal court judges.

"Sometime ago there was a substantial backlog in municipal court jury cases, often as much as 600 cases. In each court we would try two each week," explained Dist. Atty. William O'Malley.

Half of these were misdemeanor drunk driving cases and a great percentage of those involved defendants with prior drunk driving convictions, O'Malley said.

"A second conviction of drunk driving within five years means an automatic loss of driver's license," he explained.

Chowchilla

Russ Leadabrand shuffled into Livermore nearly a week after everyone else. His slavering press brethern had already beat it to San Mateo or San Leandro, some perhaps even to the Montreal Olympics, all seeking wisps of evidence in the Chowchilla kidnap mystery.

Leadabrand was in the midst compiling a freelance magazine article on theb case. He purposely remained four days behind the newshounds to keep from being trampled. His other motive was scavenging the morsels they left behind.

A man in his early 50's, Russ Leadabrand carries the appearance to match his multiplicity of talents — 22 years a writer for the Pasadena Sun Star, five years a Pasadena police consultant, most recently, an associate professor at USC, discoursing on cops and the press.

His chin juts with the defiance of a grizzled city reporter. The nose is flat and spread out over the ruddy face. Ears protrude comically and the eyes droop in eternal melancholy. He wears a tight crew-cut, the kind 60's radicals linked immediately with law enforcement.

Leadabrand is on assignment for "New West Magazine" — all expenses and a "fat juicy price" to "get the story."

You know he will.

For one thing, Leadabrand is skilled at bandying about his fields of expertise. "When it isn't cool to be media, I'm cops," he says matter of factly. "When it isn't cool to be cops, I'm media. When it isn't cool being either, I'm a professor.

For another, Leadabrand is seasoned in exploiting personal drama. And to be sure, this has become drama.

In Chowchilla the other night they screened two hours of recent news footage relating to the kidnap. The whole town attended. People even cheered at appropriate moments in the film. All they missed was the popcorn.

It seems that the horror of the situation has been lost on the populous. The Chowchilla kidnap has become a real life Dirty Harry movie.

Russ Leadabrand is symbolic of all the rest.

"I'm getting stuff no else even thought of," he bragged. "It's a funny coincidence, but the Chowchilla police chief is coming to work in Pasadena at the end of the year. He gave me access to things nobody else even saw. When he comes to Pasadena, we're going to get drunk together.

"Right now I'm going to hole up for a couple of days because I'm up to my bleep in material. I've got one cute sidebar that should be page-one, "L.A. Times."

Leadabrand says he's in Livermore to find what kind of "vibes" people get from the rock quarry where 26 kids and a bus driver were buried. He a wants to verify his theory that the abductors are on some kind of "mind trip."

"There are holes in this story you can drive a truck through," Leadabrand said shaking his head. "It blows my mind."

He theorizes that at least two ex-convicts orchestrated the Chowchilla kidnap. "They're in it for bread," he insists, rubbing his thumb and first two fingers together. The younger suspects, Leadabrand figures, sought ransom similar to that demanded in the Patricia Hearst kidnap. "Like maybe a bird sanctuary at the end of the bay."

Leadabrand has composed a back cover editorial for his publishers. It's called "Why Chowchilla?" It has a good ring, reminiscent of "Oh Calcutta." With a boffo story, you need instant identity.

Box office appeal is certainly the main consideration right now. The kids are safe at home. The suspects are in the bag. If Russ Leadabrand doesn't sell the story, someone else will. That's a business reality you pick up after two decades of hustling.

"That's really something how this thing just fell in your lap," Russ says with envy for Livermore - based journalists. "This is our bread and butter you know."

Well, not for all of us, Russ.

Gravel pit road

On July 23 this newspaper editorialized on the relationship of depleted gravel pits with the Chowchilla kidnapping and our own long - term concern for proper use and public safety regarding that scarred earth. One of the statements we made suggested that "there are no plans for any access road" that could link Stanley Boulevard to Interstate 580, through the quarry areas.

Now we are informed "there are such plans." A study commissioned by the valley's gravel industry has produced — among other goodies— — "an acceptable route" that would allow for a county road from the El Charro interchange at I - 580 to a point on Stanley west of Shadow Cliffs Park.

Perhaps we should be encouraged by this proposal. A history of disappointments provide no room for such optimism.

The "county road" being recommended by the gravel industry is at fault on several counts, and they are worth reciting here:

1. The route has not been adopted by Alameda County, and there is no assurance that the county will acquire the necessary right of way, or that the narrow isthmus of land being preserved will meet county standards;

2. The alignment being suggested passes through the existing Kaiser processing plant, and therefore that vacated land will not be available for at least another 25 years; 3. There has been no design study that looks to carrying that El Charro Road extension over some eight lines of tracks, and on over Stanley Boulevard, with space provided for necessary on and off ramps at Stanley.

This latest industry move toward "being a responsible member of the community" is not without merit. But we would not want local governments, our supervisor or the public to be lulled by this latest "answer", just as they have been dreaming along the old gravel pit trail for the past 20 years.

Let the industry publicly acknowledge that there is need for a public road through those pits other than the recent attempt to revive the "Isabel Avenue extension."

And let the county give assurance that the right - of - way proposal between I - 580 and Stanley is viable, and guaranteed.

And therefore let the public have some confidence that the 3000 - acre expanse of quarry land is going to come to something more than a burial ground for old truck bodies and even fresh young human bodies, simply because "that is what abandoned land is good for."

FOCUS/Olympics

And then 1980

MONTREAL — They built an Olympic stadium here that will be talked about for many years after Mayor Jean Drapeau is gone.

Mr. Drapeau and the 2½ million minion's of this French - Canadian stronghold set out to "top" Expo '67 and prove Montreal is one of the great cities of the world.

They could have stood on Expo.

It was shortly before Expo that a group of Bay Area Rapid Transit District movers and shakers came here to inspect the Metro. The Metro is a momument to what fast and efficient public transportation should be.

I have ridden the Metro at different hours maybe five times since arriving. I've been on BART at least half - a - hundred times, and on the "rapid transit" systems in Philly, New York and Chicago.

This is the best. Fifty cents gets you anywhere.

A major attraction, the Olympics aside, is Man - and - His - World, an exposition featuring the distinctive pavilions of many countries, including the Soviet Union, Iran, Austria, Poland, Mexico, India, Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

The Soviets have the most "alive" exhibits ... up to date murals of Red Square and sports idols Olga Korbut and Valeriy Borzov, and plenty of free pamphlets.

Russia is hosting the 1980 Olympics. The exhibit has models of all the stadiums they are building and you can bet there'll be no billion - dollar miscalculations or strikes.

Stand by the tourism counter long enough and the Ruskies will have you booked on Aeroflot in July, 1980.

The Olympics may be a thing of the past by then, but the Soviets can always top East Germany, Poland and the Czechs.

Everyone else is either tapped out or too busy rapping knuckles to come out and join the game.

Which is an unfortunate circumstance to contemplate.

Letters to the Times

Poor promotion

Editor, The Times:

In today's paper, there was a full page of pictures in your "Inside the Arts" section, and, with the exception of one they were all of last week's high school summer play "How to Succeed ... " Maybe I should be flattered to see so many pictures of my son — well, I wasn't. The drama department could have used the publicity to obtain badly needed revenue. These productions are expensive and sometimes go into the red.

I feel you deprived many people the knowledge of when the play could be seen. It was good, clean entertainment. Attendance was poor at the last play of the school year "Media," a very fine classical play which was well done. That provided a bit of culture for our town. It could have used some timely publicity.

May I ask does the "Peter Principle" apply in your office, too?

My son Nick will be in college in the fall, but for the benefit of those who will be performing in Amador's next play, please give them and any drama faus who read your paper a fair chance.

Diana Di Scala

(The Times accepts this admonition, and we also acknowledge our responsibility to "help promote the home town event." But we must rely on the early co-operation of the school, teacher or sponsor. When that co-operation is not forthcoming, we all fail, and a good program suffers. — Editor)

Flu shots

Editor, The Times:

I thought it was about time that somebody locally raised some questions in the public's mind about the swine flu inoculation. We are talking about the affect it will have on children more than anyone else.

Hidden in the middle pages of the "San Francisco Chronicle" on July 27 was an article about a scientist that was fired from the F.D.A. on the grounds of criticism of the nationwide swine flu inoculation program. It has always been my understanding that the job of a scientist is to criticize to protect us from possible dangers.

The doctor that was involved has been working with influenza since 1940, and has stated that the vaccine program will have low effectiveness, and may produce allergic reactions.

The inability of the U.S. government to procure malpractice coverage for the vaccination program is enough to make one wonder about the safety of these vaccinations.

This is not to say that all vaccination programs must be abandoned, but in order to make a good decision one must have all the facts. Parents should investigate thoroughly what their children will be injected with. After weighing all of the factors then and only then can a safe, intelligent decision be made.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Times welcomes letters from readers on any subject of interest and importance for publication in this space. They should be typed — preferably double-spaced — and only one side of the paper should be used. It is the Times policy not to publish letters that are unsigned or signed with a pen name. Council sessions

On Monday the Pleasanton city council "goes on the road." The first stop in this new municipal mobility is the Highland Oaks Cabana Club.

The idea is to "take the city government to the people." It is a well - intended program. But it won't do a damned bit of good if the people still decline to even walk down the block in search of "The Hottest Monday Night Show in Town."

The hour is 7:30 p.m., the address 4530 Sandalwood Drive, and the agenda offers such lively neighborhood tid bits as "streets," "planned residential development," "parks" and "commercial development."

The target this time is the 2000 home owners along Foothill Road ... the "forgotten quarter" of this sectioned city. You are forgotten no longer, Foothill. All the council needs now is proof of your interest in Pleasanton and its government.

On the other hand, none of those Monday night sessions will be worth attending if the city council is unable to "tell it like it is." The pattern of studies never concluded, reports never pursued, and deliberations in private is hardly the way to "encourage public participation in the process."

This "Cheese Factory sewer report" is another example where city council, or city staff, or both, have let us down. We expect something more from our elected representatives. They should demand nothing less of themselves.

round the town

There are three industries really reaping in the bucks these days, I am informed.

They are — the gun manufacturers, those who make smoke - detection devices for the home, and the makers of CB radios.

This suggests of course that we are a nation bent upon (select one) — 1. Shooting each other; 2. Talking to each other; or, 3. Doing either or both while our house burns.

As a student of American behavior (I minored in Snake Farming) I was of course fascinated by this three - fold trend. What does it all mean? The answer, I surmised, would best come from that distinguished teacher of American behavior and snake farming, my old prof, Dr. Henry Kissintell.

"There is a pattern here that suggests we Americans are entering a change of life," Dr Kissintell said. "Something like Socio - menopause."

Is it curable, I asked?

"Quite possibly, but not with any treatment now known to medical science," he replied. "Although I understand several presidential candidates and at least one news commentator are researching the subject."

Guns, citizen band radios and smoke detectors. A strange combination, I said. Does it all mean something?

"It means we are fast emerging from the fantasy of the television and cinematic screens, and we are entering the reality of the world manufactured by the forementioned," Dr. Kissintell said, soly.

Not like 'Harry O', 'Dirty Harry' and their ilk?!

"The very same, plus 'Hawaii Five - O' and Marlan Brando," the good professor added.

That may explain our hang - up on guns, but what about this nation - wide kick on CB radios and the big run on household smoke detectors ?

"The personal two - way radio is a direct outgrowth of what I call the 'All In The Family Walter Cronkite' syndrome," Dr. Kissintell said. "On the one hand we have been throughly trained to believe that tossing insults back and forth is an American tradition worthy of the highest Nielsen rating, and on the other hand we have evidence that a man can achieve fame and fortune simply by having a deep throat and convincing vowels."

And interesting conclusion, I concluded. And one I could hardly challenge.

So now we have accounted for the record - breaking sale of hand guns and the unprecedented wave of buying in CB radios. So what's with the surge for smoke detectors?

"A good question, but one easily answered," the professor advised me, scholarly. "With 50 million Americans armed to the teeth, and now able to throw insults at each other over a government - licensed radio band, we can expect Americans who can't shoot straight, or are running out of insults, to turn to the only recreation left to them."

Do you mean ...?

"Yes, burning the neighbor's house will soon become as popular as 'You Bet Your Life' or 'The World Turns.' I understand CBS is already working on a fall series entitled 'Arson Made Easy.'"

Thank you, Dr. Kissintell. It is always reassuring to consult with an old mentor in times like these.

Ron McNicoll

Exorcised

I've never paid any attention to movies like "The Omen" and "The Exorcist". As far as I am concerned, they are just horror stories with a little supernaturalism thrown in. But lately I have had to give them some serious thought. It's the only way I can explain what has happened to me lately.

I've been on a longer losing streak than the San Francifco Giants I know that's hard to believe, but look at the record.

Back in May, it was the flu. Sure that sounds innocuous, and it is innocuous. But now I see it was the first step launching a long climb downhill. Next came the mirgraine attack. I thought nothing of it. Probably just working too hard and getting lots of tension as a result.

After the migraine ended, the cough began. It turned out to be bronchitis. The 10 days of rest in bed did me a lot of good, though. I got a chance to read Herman Hesse's fine novel, "Narcissus and Goldmund". It has a vivid description of Europe in the Middle Ages, with the population dying out from the plague. Believe me, there's nothing like reading about the plague when you're sick. It gives you the full effect, just like being there.

The plague is topical these days, too. A couple of cases of it have been reported up at Lake Tahoe. There won't be any epidemic, though, because today's wonder drugs eradicate the disease.

There was another migraine after the bronchitis, but the medicine knocked it out in a day or so. Of course, if I'd known then what I'd known now — the theory I'm possessed by the devil — I would have drunk some holy water instead. Around the Catholic Church that's potent stuff to get rid of the devil. Of course, in church you only make the sign of the cross with (holy water) but I think I'd go a step further and drink it, believing as I do in the benign effects of medicines taken internally. Of course, in Ireland, I am told by my Irish relatives, holy water IS taken internally, but there it's called by its true name — whisky.

After the migraine, I stepped on a nail for the first time in my life and learned that no one gives you any sympathy when you step on a nail. Instead they ask you about the last time you got a tetanus shot. It seems tetanus shots last only 10 years and since I don't recall ever having one, I had visions of dropping dead on the spot. I made it to the emergency room of Valley Memorial Hospital, got the shot, and learned you have three days before the red line starts crawling up your leg, all the way to your heart. So much for today's free medical advice.

Of course, if I had known the devil were out to get me, I would have hired a —ouple of angels to sweep the yard clear of old rusty nails and I wouldn't have had any problems at all.

I won't even mention cutting my thumb open on the double - edged blade of a "safety razor". It was the really stupid kind of accident that could happen any time.

But the devil was doing his work not just in the physical realm, but the emotional one as well. For example, there was that stirring denunciation of apathy and Supervisor Fred Coopers which appeared under my name in this space a couple of weeks ago. Talk about devil possession! I didn't even write that. You've heard of the expression "printer's devil"? Well, I think one of them was at work in the production department and that's how my name wound up on a column written by Ron Rodriguez.

I have to admit I did seek spiritual help during this whole instance of devil possession, though it wasn't from an exorcist. I started living my life according to my biorhythm charts. These charts are a little like horoscopes — when they say you will be "down" physically, you can figure on it and plan to not stir out of the house during those times for fear of being hit by a car. At least that's the idea. But when I computed the cycles on the chart for my life, I learned that most of the above - mentioned bad things happened on the good days in my biorythm chart. And that really picked up my spirits. Because nothing makes me happier than to debunk something, including the superstitious myth of that losing streak I just told you about.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Have fun with those you pal around with today, but don't try to put any business deals together. They won't work out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're so aware of details today there's a possibility you'll overlook the big picture. Keep things in perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be fortunate today so long as you evaluate situations as they are, not as you'd like them to be. Realism is a must.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Material conditions are favorable for you today, but guard against wastefulness or you'll diminish your returns.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Set your ambitions aside for today. Just relax. Enjoy yourself. You can go back to the old grind tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions for gain are still very promising for you today. Be alert for opportunity through intimate friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Matters you handle early in the day should turn out to your satisfaction. If you wait till late evening, your luck lessens.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although you won't have as much direct control of situations today as you'd like, they will still work out very advantageously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Seek activities today that permit you to move around both mentally and physically. Get away from the TV.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pursue ambitions with vigor today while influences continue to favor you. You know what you want — go get it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a good day to start to plan ahead, but don't look too far in advance. Success comes a few steps at a time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll get exactly what you work for day. Industriousness pays handsome rewards. Select projects that are profitable.

Q. "WHY DO COWS CHEW THEIR CUDS?" A. A COW'S STOMACH HAS FOUR PARTS. IT MUST CHEW ITS FOOD TWICE BEFORE THE FOOD CAN BE DIGESTED.

KIP HALVORSEN
SHERIDAN, WY

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Cattle have the habit of swallowing their food and later bringing it back to the mouth to be rechewed. Hence they are called "cud-chewing" animals.

The cow has an odd way of digesting its food. A cow's stomach is divided into four compartments. Each compartment helps digest the food the cow eats.

While a cow is grazing it chews its food only slightly. When the food is first swallowed, it goes into the first compartment of the stomach where it is moistened.

From there it passes into the second compartment. Here the food forms into a soft ball called a cud.

Later, when the cow is resting, the cud moves back up into the cow's mouth to be chewed thoroughly.

This time, when the food is swallowed, it passes into the third and fourth compartments where real digestion takes place.

Animals that chew cuds and have this kind of stomach are called ruminants. Ox, deer, sheep, goats and antelope are ruminants.

LLL scholarship

Last year, Livermore resident and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employe Sharon Hoots switched from on the job training and night classes to become a full-time student at Cal State Hayward after winning an LLL Technician Scholarship. Another change is now in the works after she learned that the Energy Research and Development Administration had awarded her a grant to work towards a master's degree in health physics this fall at the University of Kansas.

A total 773 students

Cal State lists scholars

A total of 773 students were listed on the Dean's and Honors List for the Spring quarter at Cal State Hayward. Students achieving a straight A average numbered 237.

To be included on the Dean's List at the college, a student must carry 12 or more units and obtain a grade point average (GPA) of 3.75. A GPA of 3.5 to 3.74 is necesasary for inclusion on the Honors List.

Ice house issue is postponed

PLEASANTON — Loren Medeiros' appeal to the city council for permission to keep his large ice house in his parking lot at Pleasanton Liquors was continued to the council meeting of August 9 last week.

Medeiros promised to put shakes on the entire ice facility, but the planning commission refused him a permit to keep the structure. It is still on the property, pending the appeal to the city council. The public hearing was opened last week and continued without any testimony.

On another item, the city council learned that work on the Val Vista Park Tot Lot is approximately 75 per cent complete. To date the site has been graded and storm drainage, irrigation system, picnic and play areas have seen substantial work completed.

4-H program offers plan for adults

Opportunities in 4-H do not necessarily end when one's years in 4-H do. Former 4-H'ers 20 - 30 years old may go far as International 4-H Youth Exchange (IFYE) delegates. The exchange is made with one of 35 cooperating host countries.

As a delegate you can spend six months in another country, living with farm families, sharing experiences with students or aiding youth groups. You will live, work, play and teach as a member of your host family. While observing their way of life, you will also be telling them about your country.

All applications must be approved by County Club Council. For trips beginning in April, June or September of 1977 applications should be approved by the October 1976 council meeting.

Contact the 4-H office, 846-3277, for applications and more information.

Chabot valley campus qualifies for $375,054 in added state aid

LIVERMORE — Chabot College's Valley Campus has received more in additional monies from the state budget designated for new community colleges, a spokesman said.

The Governor's budget for new community college districts, annexed districts and new campuses yielded $375,054 to the campus for new construction. The Valley Campus was considered a new campus under provisions of the budget.

"If there was ever a time to open the Valley Campus, last year was the time," Peter A. Barthelme, assistant to the Superintendent for business services, said.

Walter S. Robie, business manager of the South County Community College District, reviewed for trustees the implications of Senate Bill 1641, the finance education measure passed by the last legislature. The bill sets absolute control on tax rates for the districts until the public votes to change them.

The maximum operating tax rate the district may levy under the bill is approximately 59.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The district anticipates it will receive $5.05 million in state support for the 1976-77 academic year, or approximately 30 per cent of the district's anticipated total budget.

Dr. Reed L. Buffington, president of Chabot College, called SB 1641 an "excellent first year bill, but it may go downhill from there."

Trustees also approved a publication budget for 1976-77 of $21.5 million.

Kidnap probers credit luck, chance, public for success

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer

CHOWCHILLA (AP) — Investigators credit informants, chance and old - fashioned detective work for the roundup of three men in the daring, daylight kidnap of 26 children and their school bus driver.

"It hasn't all come easily," said Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins. "It's taken a lot of hard - nosed investigative work, a bit of luck, and the public's help to get where we are now."

The mass abduction unfolded quickly July 15 from first reports of the missing school bus to the realization in this tiny Madera County farm town that its children had been kidnaped for reasons unknown.

The investigation spread quickly from Chowchilla to northern California, Nevada, Idaho and Canada, but it would be 15 frantic days before the low - key apprehension of the last of three young men from the wealthy communities on the peninsula south of San Francisco — Frederick N. Woods and James Schoenfeld, both 24, and Schoenfeld's 22 - year - old brother, Richard.

The first break in the case came within hours of the children's disappearance when a Madera County sheriff's deputy spotted the hijacked bus shrouded by bamboo in a dry slough 4 miles south of Chowchilla.

By nightfall, deputies had found tire tracks and authorities throughout the state were alerted that a light truck or van was apparently used in the kidnap.

Early the next day, a Friday, an important clue came from a woman who gave authorities a description and complete license plate number of one of two vans in which she had seen suspicious - acting drivers.

The license number matched a partial number supplied by another woman who reported seeing two strange vans the day of and prior to the abduction.

A widespread search was launched to find the vehicle and its owner, and the case burst wide open Friday night as the jubilant message bulletined across the country — the children and bus driver had been found alive and unharmed in a buried moving van at a Livermore rock and gravel quarry.

Now investigators could learn some details of the seemingly well - planned abduction. The children and bus driver also provided the first descriptions of the kidnapers and descriptions of their vehicles — including a partial license plate number that again matched those of the other informants.

Other breaks came the next day. Security Eye Patrol, a private firm which guards the Livermore quarry, told authorities that three young men were questioned in mid - November 1975 when they were reportedly caught digging a trench in the quarry with a bulldozer.

The only name recorded in the incident was that of a young man who identified himself as the quarry owner's son, Frederick N. Woods.

Investigators that same day searched records in Sacramento and found a van matching the license number from informants and one other that had been registered two days before the abduction under a ficticious name and address.

Within hours, the two vans were traced to an Oakland military surplus supplies dealer who reportedly said he had sold the vans to one of his regular customers — Woods.

By Sunday, authorities had run a check on Woods' criminal record and found he had been arrested at Downieville in Sierra County with two friends, James and Richard Schoenfeld, for allegedly stripping an old auto.

The three pleaded guilty to a lesser charge, were fined and given one - year's probation, which they all successfully completed.

Anti-mosquito patrol busy

Alameda County mosquito control people were busy last month trying to compensate for weather conditions that were favorable for breeding of the itchy insects.

Mosquito control workers handed out mosquito - egg - loving fish to 74 people, wiped out 35 habitats of adult mosquitoes, eliminated 16 infestations of mosquito larvae and in all, answered 162 requests for service.

District experts also reviewed park and sewer plans to head off potential insect problems.

The county mosquito abatement staff may be reached at 533 - 7321 in Oakland.

Ageson previously served as a social worker in the children's services division for the county. She will direct local efforts to make immunization available to virtually all county residents in cooperation with the National Influenza Immunization Program.

Stars win 2 abroad

BRAUNSHWEIG, West Germany — Bob Klein, of Dublin, was instrumental as the California Youth Soccer Association under-18 all-stars beat Stoeckhelm, 4-1, for their second win in a row on a tour of this nation.

After CYSA had fallen behind, 1-0, at halftime despite numerous scoring opportunities, Klein fed off to Mark Diogiovanni, who scored despite a violent collision wwith a Stoeckhelm defender.

Six minutes later, Klein put CYSA, which had made seven substitutions at halftime, ahead to stay after an alert exchange by Rick Pozo and Digiovanni.

Pozo dropped the ball off to Digiovanni whose centering pass found Klein in perfect position to convert a left-footed shot. Goals by Bruce Palmbaum and Danny McNevin wrapped up the scoring.

Despite a full day of travel, the California side had taken an easy 5-2 win in their opening match a week ago, against a make-shift Braunshweig city team. While Sportsjungend of Braunshweig had visited the US earlier this month, losing to the Al Caffodio allstars 6-3 at Dublin High School, mosts of the town's club teams have been out of action since late June.

Thus, a team had to be formed on short notice from among the city's various squads.

California High School's three-sport athlete Roger Hurlow was outstanding on defense in that game.

McNevin led the CYSA scoring with a hat trick. He scored one off a Kirk Andrade assist and got the others on a breakaway and a penalty kick. Andrade himself had scored on an Augie Colmenero assist.

One win from title

Wicks tosses two-hit shutout

AUBURN — Because of a brilliant two hitter by pitcher Rob Wicks and some fine defensive plays yesterday, Pleasanton's Senior Babe Ruth team needs to win just once today to take the Northern California Senior crown here.

Wicks and his teammates shutout Fruitridge of Sacramento, 1-0 and will meet the winner of last night's Auburn - Fruitridge game at 5 p.m. at James Field.

If Pleasanton loses the first game the teams will play again at 8 p.m. for the championship.

Pleasanton scored the game's only run in the third inning.

Chris DePrater opened the inning with a single that bounced off the Fruitridge shortstop. After Wicks struck out centerfielder Greg Boldrini was hit by a pitch, advancing DePrater to second. An error by Fruitridge second baseman Gene Peteralli, who let the ball go into left field, scored DePrater with the game's only run.

Dan Straface hit into a double play to end the inning but Pleasanton had it's run.

Fruitridge gave the winners a scare in the seventh inning.

Art Gomez reached first on an error by third baseman Don Palmer and he went to second on a sacrifice by catcher Phil Contelne. However, he was tagged out by Sean Mays on a pickoff throw by Wicks. Wicks then fanned Colin Sullivan to win the contest.

Wicks had only four strikeouts but gave up just two walks for the game. Fruitridge hurler Mike Bishop struck out seven batters and walked three.

"Wicks has some good support behind him," he said. "That's the way the game was; an outstanding pitching and defensive effort."

Bishop's best pitch was a blazing fast ball. He struck out four Pleasanton batters in the first two innings.

Dana at her best in National miss

MISSION VIEJO — Olympian Suzanne Neilson of Denmark scored a double to highlight Saturday's action at the Mission Viejo Invitational Swim Championships, while NorCal's Dana Davidson swam a lifetime best but just missed qualifying for this year's U.S. Nationals.

The three - day meet has already seen numerous young athletes qualify for the Nationals — including the women's 400 meter medley relay team from Pleasant Hill's Swim Club — and swimmers have one final chance in the remaining 10 events today.

Neilson earned her initial first place time in the women's 100 meter breast stroke with a 1:16.56 timing, nearly a full second ahead of runner - up Dawn Rodighiero of Mission Viejo (1:17.32). The European gained the double win with a top time in the 400 individual medley. That 5:05.69 clocking was an improvement of 2.64 seconds over her all - time best and also a Danish and Scandanavian record.

Davidson, competing in her first large meet against much stiffer competition than her typical age group meets, held up well under the mental pressure according to NorCal coach Bill Radley.

"This isn't easy. This is the best there is and she did a great job," Radley said of his 13 - year - old pupil. The 5'11" Davidson finished sixth in the finals of the women's 200 meter freestyle with a 2:08.95 clocking — .55 seconds over her previous best.

The 13 - year - old winner of the 200 meter freestyle — Cynthia "Sippy" Woodhead of Riverside — was nearly a full body length (4'11") ahead of second place Valerie Lee of Mission Viejo. The third through sixth place finishers in the event were only 4.2 seconds apart.

Today's 100 meter freestyle race will be Davidson's last chance to qualify for the Nationals and she will not only be competing against herself and the clock, but against her sister, Jan. Qualifying time in the 100 freestyle is 1:00.29 and Dana's best is 1:01.1.

The Pleasant Hill's Swim Club came up with a second place finish in the women's 400 meter medley relay with a 4:36.17 timing, bettering the National qualifying time of 4:36.69.

Sandy MacDonald, 20, of the San Ramon swim team took fifth place in the finals of the men's 100 meter butterfly with a 58.21 time. The qualifying mark was 57.49.

Today's events include the women's 100 meter freestyle, with Katie Fliescher of Pleasant Hill and Nancy Thompson of NorCal joining the Davidson sisters in competition.

The men's 100 meter freestyle will have Med Maggoria of San Ramon and Steve Breiter of Pleasant Hill's swimming team.

Fulton fades at Spyglass

PEBBLE BEACH — Two damaging holes early on the back nine cost Livermore's Bob Fulton a shot at second place after the first round of the Northern California Golf Association Public Links tournament at Spyglass Hill Golf Course here yesterday.

First place in the Championship Flight, played at scratch, was well out of reach as Bob Davis of Concord shot a 71.

Fulton, who shot a 79, got into the trees on the well-trapped tenth and took a triple bogey. Three holes later, the flora along Stevenson Drive claimed his ball for a double bogey six.

With Davis still on the course, Fulton remained confident.

"I'll be back tomorrow," he promised after landing in a three way tie for 11th.

Another Las Positas golfer, Vic Wolfe, tumbled to an 81 after his strong showing in the national publinks earlier this month had made him one of the favorites.

Just one over par on the front, Wolfe hit a snag when he lost his putting touch on the 15thhole, the shortest on the dune-enclosed course.

"I had way too many puts," he explained. How many?

"I can't count that high," he winced.

Although a veteran of numerous rounds at Spyglass, a stranger to many of the muni players, Wolfe added that he had problems judging distances yesterday.

"The course isn't playing easy— not even from the 'whites' (the tourney is being contested from the middle-distance regular tees rather than the championship 'blues'),"he concluded.

Other than Davis, no one found it easy. Defending champ Tim Flint was ten-over at 82 as Paul Hilton's 75 was the closest anyone else could get to par on the 6277-yard course.

In the President's Flight, for low handicappers, Dennis Younglove took a two-stroke lead with a 77-8-69 Jerald Lester of Sunol Valley, the only local player in the division, stayed in contention with an 86-11-75.

The Spyglass Hill Flight, comprised of those with handicaps of 12 or more produced a three way tie for first at 69 among Dodd Samuel, Robert Anderson and Michael Ayala.

Las Positas' Roger Young is a stroke back with 90-20-70 while John Czapowski, also of the Livermore course, shot an 87-15-72. Sunol Valley's Don Perkins was well behind with a 93-12-81.

Play concludes today in the 36-hole, medal play event.

San Jose's Chelker wins Altamont race

Jerry Chelker has been around auto racing a long time: 14 years to be exact. So he was a very composed, calm man after winning the main event of the super-modified program at Altamont Speedway Friday night.

"I've raced here before," he admitted after the race. "In fact I won the 1973 championships here."

Chelker, a San Jose resident, won the race by about 100 yards over John Pearson. He grabbed the lead on the third lap and coasted to the victory from there.

"I was suprised I won the event by that much," Chelker said as he sipped on a soft drink."I expected Pearson to be right with me. In fact I thought he was until I finished the race."

There was no official clockings for the main event as the yellow flag was dropped. The 25-lap race was halted several times because some cars had spun out on the track.

Bob Becker finished third, Mike Sergent fourth and Russ Miluver placed fifth.

Pearson was expected to be one of the top contenders in the main event after he posted the fastest qualifying time with a 17.693 clocking for one lap. Wally Pankantz of Garden Grove (Los Angeles County) had the second fastest time (17.935) and Sergent was third with a 17.991. Chelker drove to the fourth fastest qualifying time with a 18.128.

Pankantz won the first heat ahead of Chelker and Chuck Gordon. Pearson captured the second heat as Sergent finished second and Roland Wladyka was third.

Sergent finished a fine all-around evening of racing by winning the trophy dash.

'Kid' Pacheco has scoop on Cal

Go ahead, call 40-year-old Ron Pacheco a kid.

He won't deck you, promise.

Instead, the laughable, fun - loving guy might smile, get a big chuckle out of it and hand over a scoop of the hottest selling ice cream in San Ramon — bubble gum.

He likes to say it himself.

"I really think of myself as a 40-year-old kid," says Pacheco, who boasts, with good reason, of being California High's No. 1 fan and of whipping up the best tasting ice cream around.

"I like to do things for people," notes the San Ramon Swenson's ice cream owner. "I like people. I try to be funny all the time. It's just a part of me.

"I'll probably never be an adult. At 40 I'll always be a kid. That's the easiest way to say it. I don't think that you can go through life without having fun. Life is boring otherwise."

Pacheco gets his kick out of life by attending athletic events at the three-year-old San Ramon school. He seldom misses a football and baseball game and anticipates greater success when basketball season rolls around next winter.

"I only went to a few basketball games last season, but wait. I'll be out there next year. Bill Herrera's going to have a good team, he muses.

Pacheco could easily be mistaken as a coach by those not knowing him. But then, that's not a problem. Most do. He treats the Cal High gymnasium like his second home, talking sports to students sometimes from dawn to dusk.

"Sometimes I think of myself as a student and a coach," he admits. "I know I spend more time there than some of them because I know the kids that cut out.

"The advantage that I have is that I can move about the school and talk to students. I'm semi-official on campus. It's a great position to be in. The kids are great."

Pacheco even sounds like a coach when he's not sprinking nuts and tossing cherries on sundaes.

"I think the football team will be pretty good this year. Of course, Dublin's going to be tough with all four of its backs back. Foothill's probably going to have the biggest line. If we (California) could get Dublin's four backs and Foothill's line, then we'd be in great shape."

And for baseball?

"I'm confident we should take the championship. The staff is excellent. I think (Bob) Benatar and Ed Noble are great coaches. They make the kids play their best by setting high standards. That's why the team did so well last year. We had a real young ball club and still managed to finish in the weekly poll a couple of times."

Pacheco even jumps into the act at the school's spring award nights, doing his best to add a little extra zeal.

He capped the evening this year by handing out "Special Awards" to several coaches who did more than teach the game's fundamentals.

Take Benatar, for instance. During the baseball campaign, Pacheco noticed the coaches fixation for crouching low to the ground, where he'd then pick up a handful of rocks and throw them in all directions during the course of a game.

Pacheco came through with the obvious — a rock pile.

Noble, on the other hand, was having havoc playing third base coach early in the season, observed Cal's avid fan. "He got confused whether to let the runner go from third to home," explained Pacheco, "so I gave him a base with three flags. One said "stop," another "go," and the last one, "your choice."

The football team has asked Pacheco to stand guard for "Hell Week," that nasty unforgettable five day grind of constant head-on battle.

He says he'll throw in a hand where needed, but joked candidly, "the object is to see if the old man can last.

"I think it'll be fun," he says of the late August fun - in - the - sun get together.

And when the hot days are done, it's off for Swenson's and a cool refresher. The ice-creamery has been a hot-spot among area athletes and the adjoining community since the time Pacheco took over the franchise 2½ years ago.

As a bonus to excelled performers, the jolly ice cream man awards a sundae to "players of the week" from California in all sports and Dublin High during the football season.

"This is a great community for ice cream. My customers are very loyal," he says proudly.

What's the secret? Simple.

"I think I make the best ice cream around .. no artifical stuff."

There's nothing artificial about Ron Pacheco, either. He's Cal's most rabid rooter.

Livermore loses finale, 5-4

VACAVILLE — The home field advantage paid off for the Vaca Valley Minor Babe Ruth All-Star team here Wednesday evening, as it clipped Livermore, 5-4, to take the championship of the Northern California tournament at William Keating Park.

Livermore had lost to Vaca Valley in an earlier game of the double-elimination event, but came back through the loser's bracket and beat the hosts, 10-8, in a nine-inning two-day contest that forced the final showdown.

Livermore gained an early advantage as lead-off batter Brian Silva walked, stole second and scored on a single by Kevin Johns.

Vaca Valley evened the game in the third when Rick Ariza reached on an error and eventually scored in a close play at the plate on a sacrifice fly by Mark Mayo.

Four walks issued by Livermore hurler Steve Kinyon led to a 3-1 Vaca Valley lead after the fifth inning and VV picked up another run in the sixth to lead by three.

However, Livermore tied the game in the top of the seventh, and final inning.

Pinch hitter Wes Stark received the first of three walks given up by winning pitcher George Barry. Johns then picked up his second and third RBI of the game with a double that scored Stark and Silva.

Rick De Rosa followed with a single that chased Norm Lopez across the plate.

But the orange and black clad Vaca Valley nine quickly picked up the winning run in the last of the inning.

Dave Nelson and Augie Lara walked and Mike Gentry's fly ball moved them to second and third. Steve Stewart then ended things with a single that brought in Nelson.

Barry, whose size has to intimidate many of his young foes, fanned nine while giving up just three Livermore hits. He blanked the local team for four straight innings at one point.

Sam sizzles in vain

VALLEJO — Sam Sisneroz fanned 12 batters and only gave up six hits but his Pleasanton team fell to West Sacramento 7-4 in the Northern California 14-15 Major Babe Ruth All-Star Tournament here Tuesday.

The defeat eliminated Pleasanton from the tournament. Pleasanton had suffered a 12-1 loss to Vallejo National in the opening round of play.

The losers scored first in the second inning on an unearned run. Sisneroz and Guy Houston each walked. Scott Henderson reached first on a throwing error and Sisneroz scored from second.

However, West Sacramento came back with three runs in the third stanza. Pleasanton scored singles runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. West Sacramento, countered the local team's rally with four runs in the last four innings.

Larry Rooks led Pleasanton with a triple and RBI. Pat Lukins sparked the winners with two hits in three trips to the plate. Five of West Sacramento's runs came on Pleasanton errors.

ABAG updates emergency service

Thousands of lives in Alameda and Contra Costa counties may be saved with a new Emergency Medical Services program.

Some $208,200 will be spent in Alameda County, $130,300 in Contra Costa, to build up a complete life support system for the area by June, 1977. The local project is part of a nine-county program planned by the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG.)

The new system will bring ambulance service within quick reach of all residents. Statistics show that victims of many medical emergencies, such as heart attack, die before they get to a hospital because it takes so long for an ambulance to arrive, or the ambulance personnel are not highly enough trained to handle the problem.

The new emergency program will assure that an ambulance will reach the emergency victim within 10 minutes in an urban area and no more than 30 minutes in rural areas. Each ambulance will have two emergency medical technicians who have each had a minimum of 96 hours of training. Each ambulance will be equipped with two-way communications equipment, which will provide prompt direct contact with the hospital as often as necessary.

The grant money also provides for further development of a paramedic program, which includes special voice and monitoring equipment for emergency vehicles staffed by paramedics and for base hospitals.

Ann Landers

A Thank You For Mom, Dad

Dear Ann Landers: Could you possibly print this letter to my mom and dad? Sometimes I find it hard to express myself and this is an easy way to tell them.

Dear Mom and Dad: I just want to say thank you for all your years of helping me grow up. It took me a while to realize that I wasn't bad off when God gave me you two as parents. I took a look around at my friends' parents, and think I'll keep you.

Letting me learn by my own mistakes and teaching me to make decisions on my own was a good idea. You never forced me.

The key words are trust and standing by to help. Without trust, no relationship can work. I grew up on my own time by my own methods. You let me think my own thoughts and allowed me to protest if I felt I was right.

Many of my friends envy our relationship. They've told me so. I'm proud to have you two as parents, and I hope one day you will be proud of me. — Guess Who

Dear Guess: Let 'em guess! No initials, no city, no indication revealing whether by a girl or boy. I hope thousands of parents will think it was authored by their sons or daughters. It would make their day!

***

Dear Ann Landers: I thought I'd be the last person on earth who would ever write to you until I read your reply to Missouri Aunt.

When I was 14 I had a slight complexion problem and was told that lying in the sun would help dry up my oily skin. It wasn't until I was 19 that I read in your column about how bad the sun was for the skin. after that no more sunbathing for me.

I'm 25 now with very nice skin, but I wonder if I am doomed to look like a prune at 40 because of the years that I baked in the sun. Can you put my mind at ease? — Plum Sorry

Dear Plum: If you stopped broiling your epidermis at age 19, you don't have to worry about looking like a prune at 40.

Just stay out of the sun from now on, doll, and it'll be peaches and cream long after your sun-worshipping sisters have shriveled up.

***

Dear Ann Landers: Please respond to my question using good taste as the criterion rather than morality — "old" or "new"

What type of wedding would be best for a pregnant bride? Also, what type of dress would be appropriate? — Her Mother

Dear Mother: You don't say how far along the bride is. If her condition is not apparent you can have any kind of wedding you want and the bride can wear anything she wishes.

If, however, her pregnancy is obvious, I suggest a loose-fitting, tent-style garment and a family-and-close-friends-only wedding. (P.S. You might instruct the photographer to concentrate on head shots of the bride and groom.)

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

Budget Ires SR Taxpayers

DANVILLE — Disgruntled taxpayers are expected to descend upon San Ramon Valley Unified School District trustees Monday night with explicit questions about the proposed $20 million budget.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Drive, Danville.

Taxpayers Together is urging residents of Alamo, Danville and San Ramon to attend the meeting and ask for an accounting of the board on how their tax money is being spent.

The newly formed valley organization is still perturbed that the school board refused to hold a special budget study session for the community.

The San Ramon Homeowner's Association has added its criticism of the board decision, saying, "We fail to comprehend why a public agency like the school board would pass up an opportunity to provide information to a responsible citizen's group — especially budget information at this time when reassessments have made the budgets of valley agencies such a sensitive topic."

The taxpayer group is dissatisfied also with the tentative budget the district gave it which does not show line by line projections on how the district's income would be spent, Donald Gutleben said.

"It is a mystery how the school board, or for that matter, anyone else, can justify or prepare a new budget without actual expenditure figures," he said.

KNOW YOUR FOOD

WHAT OPEN DATING DOES FOR YOU!

This aid provides you with a guide to product freshness. An example is milk! Look at the date imprinted in the top of the carton. This specifies the last date this item can be sold and still allow you reasonable time to store and use the product at home. You'll find this same kind of dating on many other products. Cottage cheese has the date stamped on the bottom. Egg cartons have the dates imprinted on the end. The places for the date may vary but their purpose does not.

Store clerks know these products are not to be sold beyond the stamped date. The quality and freshness of the food also depends on the efficiency of storage and handling it receives in-store.

While this care and Open Dating is your assurance of freshness and quality, your handling of the product is also important. Never buy milk, eggs, butter, sandwich meat or other fresh products and then let them remain in your car for a couple of hours while you do other shopping. Their freshness will deteriorate out of refrigeration. Arrange your shopping so that you buy perishables on the last stop before going home. Refrigerate perishables as soon as you get home. Then, Open Dating will truly pay big dividends in freshness and top quality for you!
